A charming pair of French 19th century Louis XVI st. patinated bronzes depicting Parisians during the Belle Epoque. One bronze is of a courting scene with a gentleman and a lady elegantly dressed while he is holding a bouquet of flowers and his walking stick. The other is of two ladies, one holding a baby while the other looks. Both are also wearing fanciful period attires and hats. Both scenes are set on triangular draped like steps with a circle and diamond shapes. wonderful verdigris patination on both.
