A charming and very high quality French 19th century Louis XVI st. Sèvres porcelain and ormolu vase/centerpiece. The centerpiece is raised by an elegant square base with concave corners, a lovely fluted design with recessed panels, a mottled border, and a richly chased wrap around tied berried laurel band. The beautiful Sèvres porcelain body displays a charming and intricately detailed hand painted scene of a man and a woman seated in a forest clearing while providing shade at the front and beautiful finely detailed flowers with vivid colors on the back. At each side are striking handsome richly chased lion head handles with hoops in their mouths with foliate designs. An elegant pierced ormolu band with fine Entrelacs and beaded designs extends along the rim framing the finished white interior. All original gilt throughout.
