A stunning French 18th century Louis XVI period Mahogany, ormolu, and marble dessert console. The beautiful two tiered free standing console is raised by elegant circular tapered fluted feet with fine mottled fitted ormolu sabots each connected by a solid Mahogany tier with a lovely ormolu band at the border. Leading upwards are four slender baluster shaped fluted supports below an exquisite mottled ormolu band at the straight frieze. The single drawer displays most elegant ormolu pulls and a keyhole escutcheon set on the stunning wood background and flanked by superb brass inlaid block rosettes at each side. The drawer opens to reveal its original hardware and storage compartments while at the back is a secret compartment that can only be seen and accessed when the console is pulled off of the wall.

Above is the original marble top with an elegant mottled border.
