A handsome French 18th century Louis XVI period oak grandfather clock. The clock is raised by a square mottled base with an elegant carved recessed design. At the center is a finely carved acanthus leaf border below the circular glass display with its original glass pane through which the original pendulum is visible. Leading up the slender body are lovely scrolled and floral designs with a most decorative beaded pattern. The clock dial displays Roman numerals and is framed within a beaded and foliate carved band. Above is a striking and richly carved urn with foliate designs and a beaded and reeded pattern.
