A spectacular and extremely impressive French 19th century Louis XIV st. Belle Époque period ormolu chandelier. The large scale twenty four arm chandelier is centered by a striking bottom foliate finial below large acanthus leaves and a most decorative row of superb richly chased scrolled maidens. The arms are spread over two remarkable tiers while each elegantly scrolled arm is adorned with large finely detailed acanthus leaves and foliate designs with charming cherub heads leading to foliate bobeches with fine floral candle cups. The impressive central fut displays additional striking acanthus leaves leading up to the stunning pierced top crown which flares out to beautiful intricately detailed scrolled maidens centering the stepped mottled design above.
