An elegant and large scale French 19th century Louis XVI st. mahogany, kingwood, ormolu, and Escalette marble cabinet vitrine. The two door vitrine is raised by a straight base with a fine mottled border and a striking richly chased pierced central ormolu mount of crossed berried laurel branches tied with a charming ribbon. The two doors retain their four original glass panes framed within a mottled wrap around ormolu band and display elegant ormolu keyhole escutcheons and lovely finely detailed pierced foliate ormolu mounts. The doors open to reveal four adjustable glass shelves. The side panels display stunning quarter veneered designs showcasing the beautiful wood grain. At each corner are richly chased foliate ormolu mounts with seashells in an impressive satin and burnished finish below a tied fluted band. Above the elegantly curved top is the original rectangular Escalette marble top.
