A beautiful and most charming French 19th century Louis XVI st. ormolu and white Carrara marble statue signed Sèvres. The statue is raised by a white Carrara marble base with an elegant rounded front and a mottled border with a fine beaded ormolu band below a finely detailed ground designed base where the signature is displayed. The statue depicts four charming wonderfully executed Bacchanalian cherubs playing with cymbals and vessels while draped in fur and grape leaves with a drunken goat playfully jumping up to eat the grapes out of ones hair and with a basket next to another. All original gilt throughout.
