A very unique and highly detailed French 19th century Meiji period Japanese Lacquer and Ormolu Tray, stamped Bointaburet A Paris. This exquisite rectangular tray was fashioned with Japanese Lacquer and contains a central image of an elevated landscape featuring five birds looking over the nighttime ocean. The tray is set within its original Ormolu frame with a beautiful stepped mottled design with interlocking scrolling bands, charming leaves at the corners, and a beaded band at the border. There are two central reserves on each side with scrolling patterns that flank the seashell design, which can also be used as handles.
