A sensational and large scale pair of French 19th century Renaissance st. ormolu and patinated bronze eleven light floor lamps / torchières, attributed to Henri Picard. Each floor lamp is raised by a fine triangular base with concave sides and a mottled edge. The stunning supports display richly chased and magnificently scrolled foliate movements with most impressive and detailed roaring lion heads. At the centers are patinated bronze finials and reeded central baskets with outstanding tied ormolu bands, foliate patterns, and beaded bands. The fluted tapered patinated bronze central supports display most elegant bottom ormolu foliate patterns and acanthus leaf designs above. The spectacular candelabras style arms display lightly scrolled movements, richly chased acanthus leaves, finely etched candle cups, and bobèches. Wonderful proportions and attention to detail throughout.
