A most elegant pair of Italian 19th century Louis XVI st. Mahogany, Giltwood, Ormolu and white Carrara marble consoles. The pair of freestanding 'D' shaped consoles are raised on four square tapered legs with mottled corners and ending with Ormolu sabots. The legs are joined by slender square stretchers with the same mottled corner designs. At the aprons are three recessed panels which are separated by the legs and richly decorated by double swaging floral Giltwood garlands. Above lay their original white Carrara marble tops with mottled edges.
