A most elegant Russian early 19th century Neo-Classical st. ormolu, blue glass and crystal chandelier, circa. 1805. The six arm chandelier is centered by a fine bottom finial below a stunning array of ormolu sprays creating a woven basket look and branching out with elegant and most decorative cut crystal pendants. At the center is a beautiful circular pierced wrap around ormolu band with exquisite fitted crystal pendants from where the six arms branch out leading to foliate bobeches and floral candle cups each connected by beautiful swaging cut crystal garlands. The impressive and extremely decorative hand blown cobalt blue glass central fut displays an exceptional baluster and tapered shape and is encased with additional elegant ormolu sprays with fine tear drop shaped cut crystal pendants. Three remarkable diamond shaped chains with fitted crystals lead up to the magnificent top crown also decorated with beautiful ormolu sprays with crystal pendants.
