An attractive set of eight French late 19th century Louis XVI st. Mahogany dining chairs. The six side chairs and two armchairs are raised by tapered fluted legs ending with a topie shaped feet while the top of the leg has a mottled turned circular design. Above each leg is a block with a recessed central panel displaying a richly carved rosette. The frieze is decorated by a mottle curved molding with a bombee shaped front for the armchairs and demi lune shape for the side chairs. The tapered mottled back frame has a curved top crown flanked by foliate finials.
