A beautiful and extremely unique Italian 18th century Louis XV period patinated wood and Brèche de Baias marble console. The freestanding console is raised by handsome hoof feet below most elegant cabriole legs each connected by a lovely scalloped stretcher with a fine mottled border and a central rosette reserve. The legs are decorated with charming finely detailed hand painted acanthus leaves and foliate designs with a delicate mottled fillet leading up each leg and along the scalloped frieze which is centered by exceptional scrolled gadroon and delicate foliate designs. Above is the stunning original Brèche de Baias marble top with most decorative veneered designs and a beautiful mottled border. All original patina throughout.
