A sensational and most impressive Italian early 18th century Louis XIV period giltwood and Gris St. Anne marble console. The freestanding console is raised by elegant scrolled foliate feet below beautifully scrolled cabriole legs decorated with large richly carved acanthus leaves. Each leg is connected by an exceptional and extremely decorative stretcher with wonderfully executed scrolled wave like movements adorned with acanthus leaves and centering a superb seashell reserve. The fabulous pierced apron displays additional beautiful scrolled foliate designs with richly carved berried floral movements at each side with a superb central reserve with a charming blooming flower with each side decorated in a similar manner. Above is the original Gris St. Anne marble top fitted within a fine mottled giltwood border. All original gilt throughout.
