An exquisite French early 19th century Louis XVI st. giltwood and Bleu Turquin marble freestanding console. The console is raised by elegant circular tapered fluted legs with acorn shaped feet and finely carved foliate chandelles. Above each leg are richly carved and most decorative block rosettes which flank stunning and intricately detailed pierced fitted intertwined foliate designs which extend along the front and sides set on a hammered background. The front frieze is centered by a superb charming swaging garland adorned with blossoming flower. Above a lovely carved beaded and foliate giltwood band is the original Bleu Turquin marble top. All original gilt throughout.
